PARKS

Editor Thought and Comment:

I beg space in your columns in regard to public parks and rest rooms in the city of Richmond. I have been asked numerous times by strangers on our streets of Richmond, mostly ladies, where our public parks are located, that were built for public purposes, especially for ladies and children.

There are hundreds of women living east of the subway that go shopping daily in our local stores and start home laden down with heavy parcels and tired out.

Two ladies, the other day, living east of the subway went over to the Memorial Park to rest with their arms full of bundles and found no benches to rest on. They were informed by the gardener there "to keep off the grass." They asked where they could find a park to rest and they were informed to go to either Grand Canyon park or East Shore. These ladies too tired to walk further took up their bundles and sat on the steps of the church across the street from the park to view the beautiful park and watch the sea gulls frolic on the lawn.

I think there should be some place for tired people to sit down as most ladies use the Southern Pacific Depot as resting place on their way home.

What are our civic clubs and our city government doing for Richmond's good.

Yours truly,
W. B. POSTER, (taxpayer),

Richmond, California.

Mrs. Edna Curtis Is Named To State Amaranth Office

It was announced at the roll call of Harmony Court, Order of Amaranth, last night that Mrs. Edna E. Curtis, Royal Matron, was last week appointed Assistant Grand lecturer at a meeting of officials of the Order in Sacramento.

Among those who answered the roll call were several charter members of the Harmony Court. They responded to the call by relating the history of the Order. All other members, as well as a number of visitors from Golden Gate Order, San Francisco, answered to the reading of their names by telling a story, joke or giving some other appropriate saying.

After the meeting a banquet was held at which everyone took part in group singing. At the next meeting March 27 there will be an election of officers.

Work Started On Pinole Gas Mains

Arrival in Pinole yesterday of six carloads of gas mains made possible the commencing of work on the extension of the gas mains from Crockett to Rodeo, Hercules and Pinole.

The extension of service results from residents of the three towns petitioning the Coast Counties Gas and Electric company for service and follows a survey, which disclosed a sufficient number of subscribers to warrant the extra expense.

Mrs. H. C. Macanough, of 108 Pennsylvania avenue, is reported to be recovering from the effects of a sprained wrist, sustained a few weeks ago. She has been confined to her home since the accident.

As secretary of the municipal bath house, he has worked hard to put it over. — Richmond will soon be in the swim.

JOHN A. MILLER

Editors Note: This is another one of our series of sketches of public spirited men and community builders of Richmond. Our purpose is twofold—that individuals who have given their time and ability for the purpose of the community may be given recognition, and that such recognition may encourage others to think and act the part of community builders.

A man who is prominently identified with the industrial and civic life of Richmond is John A. Miller. As Shakespeare said: "The good men do often interline with their bones and the evil they do live long after."

Richmond cannot boast of a citizen who has done more without profit and without seeking popular comment than Miller.

Miller was born in Chicago in 1893. His parents moved to Livermore, California while he was still a baby. Miller received his early schooling in Livermore. His time was taken up after school hours in pruning trees far into the night by the aid of a lantern. Miller also did menial work in a factory at Livermore. While he was a boy in his teens his father died leaving his mother with eight small children. These children had to be fed and clothed and that task fell to John. He proved himself equal to the task by taking care of his mother and the eight children for thirteen long years.

Later the family moved to Richmond, that was in 1913. Miller then went to work for the California Wine Association at Winehaven, where he acted as foreman for a period covering five years.

In 1918 Miller went to work for the Visayan Refinery company in Richmond as a clerk. In 1922 he left that position and went into the government employ as Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, which position he still holds with honor.

His civic activities are many and varied. He was publicly manager for the war loans—Red Cross drive in 1918—Salvation drive—War Savings Stamps, etc. Miller was in charge of publicity for the Elks Charity show. He was also publicity director for the Firemen's Two-Platoon campaign, which permitted the firemen to work eight hour shifts instead of being compelled to stay on the job 24 hours straight.

Miller was president of the first Chatauqua to come to Richmond.

The city council appointed Miller chairman of parks and playgrounds in Richmond. He is also secretary of the Municipal bath house, which has just been completed and is to be opened on Saturday.

Miller is a demon for sports. He captained the first inter-city professional baseball club of Richmond his team meeting and defeating some of the best semi-professional clubs in California.

He was also manager of the all-star basketball team during 1921 and 1922. His career has been an active one. As a side line Miller now is interested in several gas service stations.

EFFORTS TO END LEAGUE CRISIS FAIL

Efforts Fruitless to Solve Difficulty in Three Hour Session Held by Council

(By Universal Service)

Special Cable Dispatch
GENEVA, March 13.—After a day of frenzied conferences and exciting reports of a compromise, Geneva was thrown into hopeless gloom again tonight. At the end of a three hour session of the council of the League of Nations this afternoon, it was intimated, that all the efforts to arrive at a solution of the crisis ended in failure.

Sweden's readiness to resign from the council of the League of Nations in favor of Poland has caused a sudden turn for the better in the condition of the ailing league. The startling developments of this frantic day were as follows:

1. Foreign Secretary Chamberlain and Chancellor Luther took luncheon together, after which it was announced that the German delegation did not intend to quit Geneva before arriving at an equitable solution.

2. The Swedish Foreign Minister, M. Uggren, unwilling to expose his country to the charge that it wrecked the League, declared that he would announce at the assembly Sweden's resignation from the council, clearing the way for Poland or any other nation favored by the assembly.

3. The suave Japanese Ambassador Ishii and the clever Czechoslovak Foreign Minister Menes were designated to work out a compromise on the basis of Sweden's surrender of her seat in the council.

4. "Germany will not oppose Poland being given a temporary seat," declared a member of the German delegation, but on the contrary Germany anticipates Poland's presence in the council with pleasure.

5. With Poland holding a non-permanent seat, it is expected that Spain and Brazil would consider turning over their application to a special commission which is to report six months from now. If Spain and Brazil accept this compromise, they would vote in favor of Germany's admission and thus settle the great crisis.

6. The Anti-Saloon League were willing to adopt irresponsible methods or to fall in with the irresponsible methods adopted by others, the straw vote would show a big dry majority.

7. The friends of prohibition as a class will not take any part in the so-called vote and will not be seriously concerned about not being disturbed by the results of the ballot.

8. The Anti-Saloon League were willing to adopt irresponsible methods or to fall in with the irresponsible methods adopted by others, the straw vote would show a big dry majority.

Newspaper Vote On Prohibition Is Denounced

President Asked Not to be Swayed by "Irresponsible and Ineffective" Vote

By JOHN T. LAMBERT
(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Denouncing the newspaper straw votes on prohibition as "irresponsible and ineffective," the Anti-Saloon League of America today appealed to President Coolidge not to be swayed by the polls which show an overwhelming demand for modification of the volstead act to permit the sale of beer and wine.

Dr. Arthur J. Barton of Kansas City, Chairman of the National Executive Committee, who headed the delegation, protested that the primary purpose of their visit was to secure more effective enforcement of the prohibition laws, rather than to attempt to counteract and adverse effect which the newspaper polls may have had upon the President.

"We did call the President's attention to the fact that this straw vote is not a matter of any serious significance," he said.

Dr. Barton and the other delegates asserted that most of the polls have been taken in the big cities "where the sentiment for prohibition has not been strongly developed."

He charged that the organized wets are expending funds and energy to influence the voting. He said if the dries participated generally, which "they will refuse to do," the polls would "show a big dry majority."

Dr. Barton was accompanied by Dr. A. H. Briggs of San Francisco and William M. Fargrave, of Boston, representing with him the National Executive Committee.

They urged the president to support the Mellon Bill to establish a joint bureau of prohibition and customs "for better enforcement of the law."

At the conclusion of their conference with the President, Dr. Barton said:

"The advance press reports that the chief matter to be presented to the President would be the current straw vote being conducted by some of the newspapers, were in error."

"Such votes did not express the sentiment of the people. The most of the papers engaged in this matter are in large cities where the sentiment for prohibition has not been strongly developed and we have credible evidence that wet organizations are pushing 'voting.' No restrictions can be imposed on the so-called voting."

"The friends of prohibition as a class will not take any part in the so-called vote and will not be seriously concerned about not being disturbed by the results of the ballot."

"If the Anti-Saloon League were willing to adopt irresponsible methods or to fall in with the irresponsible methods adopted by others, the straw vote would show a big dry majority."

PUBLIC INSPECTION OF MUNICIPAL NATATORIUM IS TO BE HELD TODAY

Citizens Will be Taken on Inspection Tour of Natatorium By City Officials Who Will Explain Workings

Richmond's new $118,000 Municipal Natatorium declared to be one of the finest and best in the San Francisco Bay Region will be open for inspection today. E. A. Hoffman, city engineer and other city officials will be on hand from 2 p. m. until 9 p. m. and explain the features of the pool to the interested visitors.

Richmond citizens have been invited to the inspection this afternoon and evening. The filter plant, boiler room and in fact every part of the pool and building will be open for inspection. Swimming however will not be allowed.

Visitors will be conducted through the various departments of the bathhouse by the city officials, who will explain the various part of the building and plant in detail.

Arrangements for the opening program to be held on Saturday afternoon are now being arranged by the Civic Affairs committee of the Chamber of Commerce of which Aubrey Wilson is chairman. This committee augmented by the presidents of all organizations in the city is to meet tomorrow to arrange the final details of the celebration.

A Pacific Association Swimming meet for Women is to be held on Sunday afternoon, March 21. J. A. McVittie city manager is now arranging the details for this event.

Tests were completed last week and according to McVittie all is now in readiness for the use of the pool. Every phase of the plant has been given a thorough working test and is operating smoothly he declares.

The pool which is 60 by 160 feet ranges in depth from 3 feet to 9 feet. A separate pool has been provided for children. Salt water is pumped into the pool from the bay and is heated and filtered at the natatorium.

North and South American Countries Determined to Prevent European Encroachment Through World Court

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, March 13.—The great powers of North and South America are united in their determination to prevent European encroachment upon the sovereignty of the new world Republics through the agency of the World Court set up by the League of Nations.

The A-B-C of South America—Argentina, Brazil and Chile—are aligned with the United States in regarding the court as merely a tribunal to which they voluntarily may refer their differences for adjudication, to accept or reject its findings as they see fit.

Both the submission to the court and the courts decisions must be ratified by the national legislatures of the South American countries concerned.

These were the outstanding features tonight or replies received by Universal Service in response to cabled inquiries made of officials at the national capitals of the "Big Three" of Latin America.

One of the objects of the inquiries was to ascertain whether or not the South American countries mentioned would object to admission of the United States to the World Court because of her reservations with which this country has buttressed its adherence.

In some of the replies there is the slightest indication that any of the South American countries will object to the reservations.

On the contrary it was quite apparent that the attitude of the countries mentioned toward the World Court is in many respects little different from that of the United States.

In a formal statement to Universal Service, a high official of the Brazilian foreign office declared the World Court to be "simply an arbitrating tribunal," only with the consent of the Brazilian Congress can his government submit and question for adjudication, he pointed out. Brazil emphasized the point that "decisions of a foreign tribunal can only become obligatory after confirmation" by some national agency, in their case, the Brazilian Supreme Court.

The Chilean message revealed that the United States in approaching the present members of the Court has asked for an immediate reply as to the acceptability of the American reservations. Chile pledged a prompt answer in accordance with this request, but declined to make any statement in advance.

Here in Washington, it was pointed out that, as in the case of many other governments, Chile's consent must be backed by Congress.

"Only an election on a clear-cut issue by voters duly qualified is a fair criterion. In a sense, the election of every congressman is a referendum, for prohibition has been a live issue for six years or more. This Congress is drier than the last and that was drier than the one before. There is no need of a referendum."

NO CURE IN PUNISHMENT

Many are disposed to blame the law or the lack of enforcement of the law for the rapid growth of crime since the world war. And doubtless too much dependence is placed in the law. Rather than be concerned with the criminal act, better results would surely be obtained by trying to understand the criminal back of the act and curing him.

Statistics show that more than two-thirds of our criminal population is made up of people who have been handled repeatedly by the machinery of the law, in which so much punishment is given for so much crime.

After society has satisfied its claims, these individuals are returned to their respective communities to prey again upon the people who have punished them. These conditions will exist so long as the present method is followed.

The prison sentence may satisfy the demands of the law, but if it is to be of any value in correcting the future conduct of the individual, a clear understanding of his specific capacities, tendencies and disabilities must be obtained.

The reform of the individual and not alone the abstract satisfaction of the law, should be the object in view and if such is not possible at the end of the prison sentence, he should be detained until such time as his life has been readjusted so that he will be safe to set free.

We spend vast sums of money to punish but none to cure, and when the term of punishment is over, the criminal is given his freedom and in the majority of cases falls into old ways and habits.

During the recent terrific storms on the Atlantic four ships almost simultaneously reported themselves in peril.

"Fifty years ago," says the Paris, France, Times, "not only would they have been unable to call for help, but they would have stood strong chances of going down with all hands. Even in the steamer lanes, a sinking craft blown off her course or just out of the range of visibility of passing ships would have stood small chance of rescue. However, when the faint three dots, three dashes and three dots of the distress signal were picked up by some watchful wireless operator, the word was passed and the air was cleared for reception of the unfortunate ship's position and the organization of relief.

"The signals of the powerful navy stations crashed through the atmosphere, demanding right of way and silencing broadcasting. The music and entertainment going out from scores of American stations was stopped for the longest period since the popularization of the radio. Millions of listeners in on two continents were informed that ships were in distress and that they would have to forgo their evening's entertainment.

Some Pages from American History

BIRTH OF BEN FRANKLIN

Benjamin Franklin has been called the First Great American.

Whether or not he should be called "First" he was certainly a great American and we must not pass by his birth year without making note of it.

Franklin was the youngest of a large family. He was born in Boston, Massachusetts in the year 1706.

We are told that Benjamin could not remember when he couldn't read. When he was eight years old he was sent to the Boston grammar school. It was fortunate that he lived in a community where schools were advanced for that day.

He only went there a year. Then he went to a different school where he studied writing and arithmetic.

When he was ten years old, he was thought to be educated enough. So he was taken out of school and went to his father's shop to help him in his business. He was a soap-boiler and tallow-candler. He worked with his father for about three years.

The next step in his life was rather important because it brought him into the printing business. He was apprenticed to his brother who was starting a newspaper called the "New England Courant."

Benjamin liked writing and he used to write little pieces for his brother's paper. He slipped these under the door and signed no name. They attracted some attention and after a while he admitted that he wrote them.

After a while, however, he determined to break away from his brother's business. First he went down to New York, then on to Philadelphia.

In Philadelphia Benjamin went into the employ of a printer.

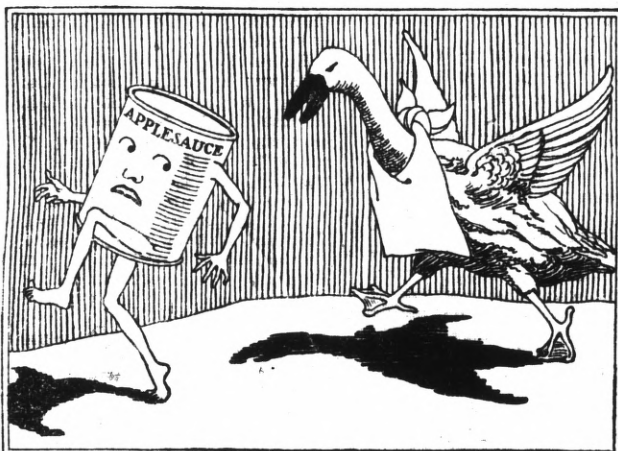

Franklin was clever with the use of his fingers, always. He liked to occupy himself with inventions, some of which we may hear about a little later.

For his day, he was very scientific, but you must remember that science was very young then. No one really knew much about the scientific facts that are a part of our everyday life.

Moreover, he was very gifted in a literary way, and came to be a very famous man.

Sauce For The Goose

THERE is almost no meat or poultry that is not improved by the accompaniment of a tart fruit sauce. Chief of these is applesauce. Without it the goose would lose much of its popularity. As for pork—deprived of applesauce, it would be like a story without a point. Provided it is made of rather sour apples, applesauce is excellent with duck, chicken or even turkey. It is the handiest possible sauce for the housewife, since it is now put up in ready-to-serve form, thus saving her much time and labor. She may also get her duck, chicken or turkey out of a can, as well as most of the staple meats.

The King of Vegetables

THE flaming red "love-apple"—to call the tomato by its early name—comes rightly by its royal coloring. It is the king of vegetables by "divine right" of superiority in food value.

The tomato is unique. It is two different kinds of food in one, possessing the peculiar acidity and succulence of fruit, while at the same time being rich in vegetable properties. Most important of all, it contains in remarkable proportions all the vitamins necessary to human growth and development. It is an excellent stimulant to the appetite.

So dependent have we become upon the tomato, that if it were obtainable only in summer, we would miss it inexpressibly the rest of the year.

We could find no substitute for the flavor it adds to soups and meats, for its delicious succulence as a salad. Otherwise, it is ready for the table or to use in making various dainty desserts.

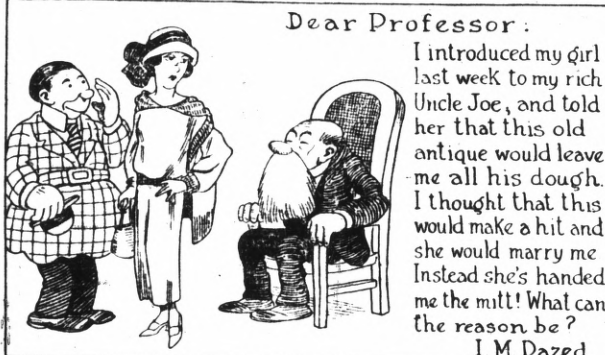

Baked Apple-Pudding is made by mixing a can of applesauce with two beaten eggs and bread-crumbs which have been moistened with melted butter. If applesauce is very tart, add sufficient brown sugar to sweeten. Bake until brown.

Apple Roll—Mix and sift 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking-powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Work in 2 table-spoons butter and add 3/4 cup milk, mixing with knife. Roll out dough on floured board; cover with canned applesauce and roll dough like jelly roll. Steam one hour and twenty minutes in covered vessel. Serve with vanilla sauce.

Komac Stew—Melt butter size of walnut in frying pan and fry in it 2 good-sized onions thinly sliced. Add 1 green pepper cut fine and 1 can tomatoes. Season, cover and simmer slowly for a half-hour. Add 2 beaten eggs, stirring in well. Serve on toast.

Connie Talmadge Will Retire; John Barrymore to Quit Stage; Latest Rumors From Hollywood

(By Universal Service)

NEW YORK, March 13.—So Connie Talmadge is really going to retire. Joseph M. Schenck says she will and he's certain enough to offer bets on it. After three more pictures, the first of which is in production now, we'll have to think of Connie only as Mrs. Alastair MacIntosh.

Depressing as the news may be, one can hardly blame Connie for wanting to retire. For several years, she has been among the most active of the stars, making one picture after another. Over a year ago she expressed a long long never to see a camera again. A long contract with the First National kept her at work.

More news brought by the Schencks concerned the definite signing of John Barrymore and Buster Keaton by United Artists. Barrymore's contract is practically for life, at least for as long as he makes pictures. In a way, this means retirement for Barrymore too. If he concentrates on Hollywood productions, Broadway will see little of him. Occasionally he may sandwich in a play between his two films a year.

Talking to Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in the dining-room of the Hotel Algonquin is much like trying to chat with President Coolidge during a White House reception. Doug's nervous energy, which keeps him so active in Hollywood has increased since his arrival in New York. So, at least, Mary sighed.

Enthusiasm is inevitable when Fairbanks appears. He himself has so much for everyone and everything. Within two minutes the whole room glows with his reflection.

Of course, "The Black Pirate" dominated the conversation, yet "Sparrows" would not be downed. Being it was, not Mary, who interrupted with talk of her picture.

That film, according to him, is the greatest, the most appealing.

About "The Black Pirate" now, nothing pleased its star more than the only criticism it has received. Comments on its slowness in story make him rejoice. That is exactly the effect he strove for.

For years, he's wanted to make a pirate story. What boy hasn't dreamed of taking a ship single-handed? Fairbanks laughed.

"Really, I've the mental age of a seventeen-year-old boy. I make, or try to make, just the kind of pictures I enjoy myself. What I wanted to produce was quite feeling I got from Pyle's illustrations. Everything depends on angles, anyway.

After all, every picture, every story, every person must be considered from a different point of view, says Fairbanks.

"You have to look through other people's eyes sometimes. In Spain some years ago, Mary and I were watching a native singer, famous for her beauty. At first our eyes, accustomed to American loveliness, could not see her beauty. Then I whispered to Mary let us look through Spanish eyes, we tried. And there was the Mona Lisa in her smile."

Spain? Isn't that where their next picture is to be made? That isn't sure. Mary has an idea for a story starring them both but that but, very evidently, meant that their hearts still cling to their last pictures; they don't quite belong to the public yet. These two productions, though Doug insists that "Sparrows," like anything of beauty, belongs to the world at large. Anyway, it hasn't been released. I don't think the next film though dimly planned, has yet quite captured their imaginations.

Only ten days ago the Paramount junior stars graduated, with appropriate sighs and ceremony. Already their little group is beginning to separate. Sometime during the year they will all be featured again in three more pictures. At present they are being used in other productions.

After shaking the hands of all his "wonder children," Sam Wood left for the coast with scenario writer, Byron Morgan. It is hard to imagine a more pleasant director to have taught the sixteen students what screen acting means. I hope he directs all their future pictures and I am quite sure that they hope so too.

Since Charles (Buddy) Rogers is not to play in "Beau Geste" after all, Walter Goss is really the first to pull off a regular part. This former newspaperman is in Gloria Swanson's picture, "Fine Managers," now being filmed. It is particularly appropriate that she should be the first star with whom he appears for it was Miss Swanson who first suggested movies to him some five years ago. Not until the school was formed, was his screen test accepted, however.

Feeding The Children

THE "old woman who lived in a shoe" had no monopoly on the vexatious problems connected with large families. There are plenty of women today, both old and young, who have so many children they don't know what to do. Even with one child, and living in a much more commodious domicile than a shoe, a mother has worries enough.

But the modern mother has one advantage over the ancient shoe-dweller of Mother Goose fame. The feeding problem is solved for her by ready-to-serve foods. The well-road woman knows that she can rely upon canned foods, not only for convenience and economy, but for their highly nutritive qualities.

She buys canned corn for dinner because it is rich in sugar, starch and fat, which supply the body with heat and energy. She selects peas and stringless beans because of their protein and vitamin content. Canned spinach her children must have because, besides being rich in vitamins, it serves as a broom to sweep out the digestive tract. She orders plenty of canned tomatoes because they contain both fruit and vegetable acids, mineral salts and all the essential vitamins. Prepared spaghetti, blended with cheese and tomato sauce, and thus containing practically all the body-building elements, is included in her purchases. Baked beans and a variety of canned and fresh fruits she will also want.

It is not likely that children fed on these healthful foods will ever drive their mother to the extreme measures adopted by the old woman who lived in a shoe.

"The world is growing smaller—and safer?"

Anyhow it was all right to postpone that disarmament conference in Europe until they could get the various nations on speaking terms with one another.

Easter Program Is to Include Famous Reading

The Richmond Church Fellowship announce as a part of their Last Easter Week program a reading by Mrs. Ira N. Allen from Marie Forelli's "Resurrection from Narannas."

Mrs. Allen has recently returned from an eastern trip where she gave her various readings to some of the largest congregations the special demand being for the story of The Resurrection.

In many cases she was recalled to the same congregation for a repetition of this great masterpiece.

The following are a few endorsements in which local people will be interested:

I do not know your superior for dramatic power and sympathetic rendering of difficult readings, yours is a great gift.—Elbert R. Dille, D. D., First M. E. Church, Oakland.

A reader with unusual dramatic power—a story teller with an inexhaustible repertoire, holding our children daily with charming tales and wondrous witcheries. She has made a thorough study of the great tragedy of "Barabbas," and gives it with a sustained power that carries her hearers into the heart of the august and majestic scene that makes Easter-time immortal and mighty.—John B. Donaldson, D. D., St. James Presbyterian Church, Oakland.

Mrs. Allen read for us "Barabbas"—every one was pleased and profited. I most heartily praise the matter and manner of her work, and commend her to Christian people.—Jas. B. Orr, Pastor, Foothill Blvd. Congregational Church, Oakland.

She never fails to make good—She read "Barabbas" two successive seasons to the great delight of our people.—W. E. Robinson, The Record, Herald.

Washington's Social Functions Include Dinner to President By Capitol's Newspaper Men

By GEORGIA WASHINGTON (By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, March 13.—It's a sad day for Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrand when the "little cabinet" entertains and she can't be there. Last Monday was one of those days.

There was a gorgeous dinner for the genial speaker of the House and what should come along and claim her, but an attack of grippe. She would have been the only woman there too, and my! what a loss!

You see, Mrs. Willebrand, as assistant attorney-general, has no rival in femininity in that charming group of assistants or under secretaries of the various departments known as the "little cabinet."

She's mistress of all she surveys and she surely surveys "em every time this cabinet thing meets at dinner, which is once a month. She loves it, and what woman wouldn't?

Then when the little cabinet has "ladies night" every year, when wives are let in on the frivolities, Mrs. Willebrand is a lady among ladies. She's whatever a queen would be in a democratic country.

But Monday night she sniffed alone in her boudoir and let a perfectly good party stagger it out alone. Speaker Longworth himself was chief raconteur, 'tis said.

Speaking of the grippe. That moist-weather indisposition has caused a regular exodus from the capital for recuperation purposes. Whoever has the time and money flies to the south to shake off the first or last throes of the ubiquitous bad cold.

The complaint has invaded high and low homes alike; and in the case of the former, sent the occupants scurrying for a kinder climate.

The Kelloggs are among the latest to depart. What with a million or so pink tees to attend and the multitudinous affairs of State to look after, Secretary Kellogg fell an easy victim to the little old grippe germ. So he and Mrs. Kellogg are in Pinehurst, N. C. for a spell.

But Florida is the happy hunting grounds for Washingtonians with troublesome noses—and for those with fat pocket-books. The secretary of labor has just returned with young Jimmy Davis from that sunny state, and so has Secretary Hoover, who is bringing back some marvelous fishing tale.

Senator and Mrs. David A. Reed of Pennsylvania have journeyed down to St. Augustine for a stay at the Ponce de Leon. They will find in that vicinity, among many other capital residents, the A. Mitchell Palmers and the Edward B. McLans.

If there has been an exodus from the capital, there has also been a domicile of the gifted and charming Sir Esme Howard has come out of the mourning that draped its doors most of the winter for one reason or another, visitors from the little English isle have been legion.

Parties galore, both at the embassy and at other places for embassy folk. Sir Esme and Lady Isabella are much in demand. They have had as house guests Lord and Lady Buxton, the former an ex-governor of South Africa.

Then there are Lord and Lady Swaythling and their daughter, the Honorable Miss Montague; Lady Lister Kaye, and the Marquess and Marchioness of Huntley to add to the Lenten gayety. The Marchioness is here primarily to sell her Washington home, occupied when she was Mrs. James McDonald. All its treasures, collected with much care, must go.

The embassy, along with its numerous parties, is providing one of the capital's spring wed-

FOR The AUTOIST

Absent Minded Motorists Give The State $800

SACRAMENTO, March 13.—Absent minded motorists have enriched the State's Road Repair Fund by a sum exceeding $800 in the last five years the Division of Motor Vehicles announced today.

Several years ago the Division adopted a policy of refunding motorists excess fees sent in for licenses where such excess amounted to 11 cents or more. If the amount received in excess was less than 11 cents it was deemed too small to bother with and went into the road fund. Similarly, if the motorist was short 11 cents of his fee the division demanded that he make it up but if his shortage was less than 11 cents the division made it up and said nothing about it.

Today a check revealed that the "longs" had so far exceeded the "shorts" that the State was more than $800 ahead.

Partner of Women In "Love Game" is Held in Martinez

JAMES DRISCOLL, 32, a colored salesman, at Oakland, was arrested at Oakland on Friday night and charged with being the companion of a "love game" on John Benson, of the Shell company at Martinez on Wednesday. Driscoll was arrested by Deputy Sheriff J. M. Joseph and is being held in the county jail on a charge of grand larceny.

Joseph declares that as he was walking near Driscoll's house, the colored man saw him and made a dash for a parked car. After a chase of four blocks he finally crowded the colored man's car to the curb.

Although Driscoll denies that he was in Martinez on Wednesday night, Joseph declares that the number of the car that fled out of Martinez following the arrest of Miss Lana Richardson, 22, colored, is that of the machine registered to Driscoll.

Deputy Sheriff R. McNamara obtained the number of the car. McNamara was summoned by Benson after he had discovered the loss of his wallet and $70. Benson reported that a colored woman had embraced him while he was walking along the street. Miss Richardson was taken into custody, but Benson could not identify her.

Golden Bears Beat Saints In Track Meet

BERKELEY, Cal., March 13.—The first track and field meet between the University of California and St. Mary's college of Oakland turned out to be a runaway for the Golden Bears here late this afternoon. California running up the overwhelming total of 137 points against the Saints' 4. The Oakland athletes were shut out almost from start to finish, their lower being saved only by Smith's and captured second in the century and by Butt-mountain who managed to annex a third in the javelin event. No records were broken during the meet.

U. C. Sprinter Is Disqualified

Because of scholarship deficiency Phil Barber, star sprinter of the University of California track and field team, has been ruled ineligible for the track meet with the University of Southern California at Los Angeles on Saturday.

A marriage license was issued in Martinez today to Albert Able Rowe, 21, and Floeta May Johnson 18, both of Richmond.

CONTINENTAL IS TO USE SLEEVE VALVE

(By Universal Service)

DETROIT, Mich., March 13.—Attention of the automobile industry here is focused on the announcement of the Continental Motors Corporation of Detroit, that this large motor building organization has secured the basic patents on the Burt-McCollum or Argyl single sleeve valve engine.

This announcement is of striking significance in view of the fact that this company, the largest exclusive automobile motor manufacturing company, has gathered to the Poppet valve type of engines during its 25 years experience of gasoline engine building experience.

Due to Continental's prominence in the automobile engine building field, thousands of new designs have been offered the company, but the Argyl engine is the first departure from the original standard gasoline engine practice that the company has made after having the experience of building more than 2,750,000 Poppet valve type motors.

The Argyl engine is the invention of two Scottish engineers, Burt and McCollum, each of the two, working alone and unknown to each other had perfected a single sleeve valve engine. When they both applied for patents at approximately the same time, they came together and agreed that it would be best, in the interests of each, to merge their efforts and the new Argyl engine is the result.

Continental has been negotiating for the basic patents for many months and only last week was the deal consummated.

R. W. Judson, president of Continental, in making the announcement, declared that the Argyl engine has several advantages over the present day type of Poppet and overhead valves.

"One of the most obvious advantages is the quietness of operation and its lack of vibration," Judson declared. "It's extreme long life due to its perfect lubrication system, is another point in its inventory sheet."

Here is how it works. The principle of the motor is a single sleeve valve, cylindrical in form, having a number of specially shaped ports at the top and a single universal driving connection at the bottom. The sleeve is actuated by a short shaft consisting of a disc with an eccentric pin at the end engaging in the universal at the bottom of the sleeve. These discs are driven by means of skew gears from the valve shaft—the equivalent of the cam shaft on a poppet type engine. These discs, rotated by the valve shaft and the eccentric pins thereon, impart to the sleeves a combined vertical and horizontal travel as the universal joints allow the sleeves freedom to partially rotate on their axis.

The path of each sleeve is elliptical, that is to say, if a pencil point could be passed through the cylinder wall and held against a sleeve, it would mark an ellipse. The cross shafts run at half engine speed. The ports in the cylinders are therefore only uncovered by corresponding points in the sleeves once in a complete revolution of the valve shaft, or two revolutions of the crank shaft. The action of the sleeves valve is positive at all speeds and improves with wear.

All of the valve mechanism is enclosed and runs in oil, reducing the wear, although the sleeve is larger and heavier than the Poppet valves which it replaces. According to Continental experts less power is absorbed in its operation than is required to lift Poppet valves against the pressure of the exploded gases in the cylinder.

The valve action: Being positive at all speeds, permits very efficient high speed operation, thus increasing the horse power as well as mileage per gallon of gas.

Another advantage claimed for the engine is that it lends itself to the adoption of modern improvements such as the supercharger, oil rectifier, air cleaner and other devices that may be built into the motor due to its few parts.

Characteristic of its attitude in similar matters in years past,

Auto Forfeitures And Fines for Year Nearly a Million

SACRAMENTO, March 13.—Another reason for the high cost of maintaining an automobile was given in a report issued today by Will H. Marsh, chief of the Division of Motor Vehicles showing that fines and forfeitures collected by California courts during the past year for violations of the vehicles act totaled $892,596.05.

Speeding, reckless driving and driving while under the influence of intoxicating liquor were found most costly as erring motorists brought into court on these charges during the year paid a total in fines of $735,609.80.

Another group who had broken sections of the law classified as rules of the road paid $83,836 for whatever fun they got out of it. For driving with improper lights another group paid $25,527.50. Fines were assessed for other offenses as follows:

Violation of plate regulations, $6,816; driving with open muffler $15,443; driving without operator's license $6,686; miscellaneous, $18,677.75.

the automobile industry, with scarcely a single dissenting company is passing the automobile excise tax cut saving on to the motorist. The average automobile is $29 cheaper that it was ten days ago, as a result of the action of the industry in absorbing the loss.

That's the stuff! "The Lucky Devil," directed for the screen by Frank Tuttle, who made "Too Many Kisses" and "Miss Bluebeard," is an original screen story by Byron Morgan, author of all the Wally Reid auto successes. Esther Ralston is Dix's leading woman.

Dix, as Randy Farman, who demonstrates auto camping outfits in a store wins at a charity bazaar a specially built roadster, around which has revolved a sensational breach of promise suit between the wealthy Rudolph Franklyn, and a notorious show girl, Zola Amber.

Then follows a series of thrill-filled laugh scenes. From here on the laughs and thrills build up to unbelievable heights, the scenes including a bout between the star and "Gunboat" Smith (himself) and winding up with an automobile road race that'll pull you out of your seat.

Other big names in the cast of the picture, which is absolutely the greatest Dix picture yet made, include Edna May Oliver, Anthony Jowitt, new "find," who played in "The Little French Girl," Joe Burke, Myr Foy and Charles Selton.

The second feature of this big double bill presents Larry Semon in his latest fun spasm, "Kid Speed." It's funnier than a circus and faster than greased lightning. "KinoGrams" world news will also be screened.

VAUDEVILLE; COMEDY FILM AT CALIFORNIA

A bright and sparkling bill of five acts of road show vaudeville will be offered at the California theatre today, in conjunction with the screen feature "Hands Up" featuring Raymond Griffith, as a confederate spy in his latest laugh riot.

Billy Spencer gives the vaudeville bill a merry start with his new and sensational European novelties.

"Promoters of Laughs" are Myre and Myre, a couple who indulge in character comedy singing, talking and a little dancing. This versatile duo do everything well and there is entertainment value every moment they are on the stage.

Two clever girls are Dawson and Jackson, one specializing in song and dance of the eccentric order, and the other interpolating musical bits in a humorous manner. The girls wear pretty costumes and their snappy production is full of merit.

With the repertoire of numbers that include the more popular Italian airs as well as the up-to-date American ballads, The Bohemian Trio are sure to be big favorites. Their voices are excellently balanced and their selection of numbers all that can be desired.

With a "Cycle of Song and Dance" which is really a miniature Revue, Willis West and two sprightly misses make merry in a 1926 series of special hits that should tickle the palate of variety fans.

Raymond Griffith—he of the high silk hat and winning smile in a rip-roaring film entitled "Hands Up"—will demonstrate anew that he is without a peer in the field of pantomimic comedy.

Threading its way through the stirring action of the story is an ingeniously developed romance in which our hero is kept in a feverish state of activity making love to two pretty girls. Unable to decide which he loves best, Griffith is forced in the end to take the only logical way out and this solution is the final, merry touch to a picture which keeps the spectators in a continuous hilarious uproar.

The star is surrounded with a brilliant supporting cast, including such outstanding players as Mack Swain, Montague Love, Marion Nixon and Virginia Lee Corbin.

Worthy of particular mention are the many famous historical figures that enter into the serious background of the story, such as Abraham Lincoln, General Lee, Brigham Young and Sitting Bull.

Other features include "Quick Service," a Cameo comedy; world news events; Carl Richard's California orchestra; Larry Canelo at the mighty organ.

Coming for two days only, starting tomorrow, "Bluebeard's Seven Wives" a comedy plot, featuring Blanche Sweet, Lois Wilson and Ben Lyon.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Leggett and son, of 1324 Barrett avenue, motored to Los Angeles for the week-end yesterday. While in the south they expect to visit various points.

Irene

—her greatest comedy achievement and the best dressed laugh show that ever came to town. Adapted from the Musical Comedy triumph

Plot Demanded That Colleen "Get the Gate"

Even a film star has to be "fried" now and then. Motion picture plots demand it.

Colleen Moore is the latest screen luminary to get the gate in reel life.

In her latest picture, "Irene," based on the well-known musical comedy hit of the same name, the little star is informed that her services are no longer required. It is a sad blow, but she recovers from it sufficiently to get herself a better job, which is what usually happens in reel life.

According to the best authorities, "Irene" is slated to have its first local showing at the California theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. In support of Miss Moore are Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur, Charlie Murray, Kate Price, Eva Novak, Edward Earle, Lawrence Wheat and Ida Darling.

A magnificent color scene is the climax of the production. It depicts a fashion fete featuring gowns especially created for Miss Moore and her entourage by Cora MacGeachy, who has created costumes for Flo Ziegfeld's famous "Follies."

A specially arranged Irish program is being arranged by Larry Canelo, the California's popular organist; to be presented in conjunction with the "Irene" engagement on St. Patrick's Day.

Marion Talley, Famous Girl Singer Is Heard In Production Of the Famous Rossignol Opera

By CORINA WRIGHT
Society's Renowned Singer and Writer.

Copyright, 1926, Universal Service.
NEW YORK, March 13.—Little Marion Talley was heard but not seen when the Metropolitan Opera House presented the Stravinsky opera "The Rossignol" last week. Anybody to hear what so young a girl could accomplish with such dramatic music, I slipped into a dress rehearsal and found many other admirers watching the event.

Also Talley does not appear on the stage for this work, but her voice is heard from the orchestra. It is the music of the nightingale, which charms the king of the fairy world, taken from one of Hans Christian Andersen's delightful tales. Miss Talley's voice fresh and unspoiled rang out like a bird, which indeed it was intended to be and it is a matter of wonder to me that such an inexperienced girl could have gained command of such exacting music. You may feel that a Patti or a Melba could do better, but there are few singers today whose execution is better than Miss Talley's.

"Proceeding 'Rossignol' was a two act version of one of De Fallas' early operas in which Lucezuela Bori captured the stellar honors. Miss Bori, always a graceful and charming figure and a singer and interpreter of the highest order, is the best dressed woman on the operatic stage. Her costumes are always the height of good taste, carefully thought out to suit every detail, and in "La Vida Breve" with the picturesque headresses and vividly colored Spanish dresses, she resembled a Zuleaga portrait.

Notwithstanding the recent threats of the blackhand society, and acquaintance of mine would not be so far from "nag" when she applied for admittance to Benjamin Gibli's recent New York concert. The house was crowded and a single seat in the highest balcony was her reward. Beside her sat a real enthusiast. When Gibli appeared on the stage and began to sing he could not conceal his excitement. With every round of applause he seemed to fidget with anticipation, his high C bang out at the end of an aria, he could contain himself no longer, and plunged into conversation. My friend was somewhat at a loss just how to place him and turning it over in her mind when he finally burst out with:

"You know who I am of course?"
She was obliged to reply in the negative.
"Don't you recognize me from pictures in the papers?"
Again she had to admit ignorance.

"Well, I'm the barber," he said proudly. "The Barber who sings. I'm going to be a great singer. Everybody says so. And when I hear an artist like Gibli, I realize all the honors there are before, and I'm so excited!"

And this indeed was the young barber who has been assured a musical education by enthusiasts who predict a brilliant future for the young man if he becomes as adept with his hand as he is with his voice.

as he is with a razor blade.

Walter Damrosch, now in Paris, has been pressed into service abroad and instead of devoting his European sojourn to a quest of ease and rest as he had planned, he has accepted an invitation to conduct the symphony orchestra in Madrid during his visit there next month. The request came from E. Fernandez Abrios, the orchestra's regular conductor.

John Charles Thomas feels that he cannot desert his native land much longer, and though he is bound by a two year contract to the royal opera in Brussels, where he is now, he cables that he has obtained a release for January, February and March next season, which he will devote to a concert tour in the United States.

At least there are some performers at the Metropolitan Opera House who are not rolling in the proverbial ducats of that August dress. Here is a letter addressed to one of the daily newspapers from "The Sandwichmen" appearing in John Alden Carrington's novel recently produced in this city:

"What you kindly give us, the Sandwichmen, in that uproar called the Skyscraper that is played in the Metropolitan Opera House, is his notice or boom us? We are all down and outers, and all we get for that part, carrying the signs, is the measly sum of one dollar a performance. If you do this perhaps Otto Kahn and the rest of the stockholders might open their purses and give us a little more. We have all been Sandwichmen on the public streets and the lowest paid Sandwichmen get at the lowest $2 per day. So it is a boy for us."

(Signed) Skyscraper Sandwiches, Metropolitan Opera House, New Mills Hotel, New York."

Eastbay Safety Council Is to Increase Work

Broadening of the work of the Eastbay Safety Council is to be carried out through the new committees named at a meeting of the Board of Governors in Oakland today. The committees will have charge of various phases of Safety Work, and will lay plans for a parade this Spring and for cooperation by churches, fraternal organizations, service clubs, theatres and other agencies with the object of educating the public to the need for using more care in the operations of automobiles. To the end that fatality figures may be greatly reduced this year.

The outstanding event of the Spring will be a gigantic safety parade through the downtown streets in which every phase of the safety problem will be exploited through floats and banners. Service Clubs and other organizations are to be asked to cooperate in staging this big street demonstration.

The parade will be in charge of the newly created activities committee headed by Fred R. Caldwell, Oliver Kehrlein, President named on this committee. A. H. Hildard, Robert Mariand, Commissioner Frank Colburn, Fred Morcom, Harold Weber and R. Chase. Caldwell's committee according to the present plans will be one of the most important in the Safety Council. It will outline the detailed steps which the Safety Council shall take to reduce the death and accident list. Under this committee will come discussion of the details for participation by all Alameda County cities outside of Oakland in the Safety Council's program.

Other committees named were Church Committee headed by Geo. C. Pardee, Chairman; Fraternal Organizations, W. J. Hamilton, Chairman; Budget Committee, A. J. Anderson, Chairman; E. C. Elliott and A. C. Hibbard, Chairman; George Harbo, General Manager of the Key System Transit Company and J. C. McPherson, Superintendent of the Electric Division of the Eastbay for the Southern Pacific, were elected to the Board of Governors.

The Ministerial Union will be asked to suggest an Oakland pastor to take the place of Rev. John Smith former pastor of the First Baptist Church whose departure from Oakland left a vacancy on the Board.

Old Styles for Men's Coats Are Being Revived

By EDWARD M. RUTTENBER

Universal Service Fashion Expert.
NEW YORK, March 13.—Sports wear for men is now a wide topic. Men often say to women: "I wonder if she looks as good from the front as she does from the back." When a man is wearing one of the new sports jackets today a woman has the potential privilege of asking the same question of another woman out of the corner of her mouth.

Verily, some of the new sports coats, are like some books; they are better in the back than they are in the front. Men have taken to beautifying their backs again. A revival of the war day furberows, pin-backs, yoke and belted-back styles have again been introduced in the current models. All sorts of inverted pleats, belted backs, etc., have been dug out of obscurity and reinstated.

In the knitted sports wear that the well-dressed man will wear from now on a subdued note is apparent. Sweater patterns are much more subdued. Pastel shades predominate. In hose and sweaters, and in every imaginable way of new styles, are easier on the eyes. Golf stockings with sweaters to match belong in the line of forgotten things, largely for the reason that the system was not practical.

Old wood cuts of semi-insane sportsmen looking for stockings which must be washed more often than sweaters and golfers and bikers could seldom make up a set when about to take to the open spaces. Sets are now a bargain counter proposition and a delight to those who browse where the price tags have been lanced and the profits let out.

In buying his sports outfit hereafter the man who wants to look as though he was accustomed to the soigne life will keep his foot on the soft pedal in the matter of sweaters and stockings. His sports coat may gracefully feature all manner of decorations in the back, but shrinking effects elsewhere are taboo.

Wild and woolly are the gloves worn by the out-door man this winter. Although originally conceived for the winter sportsmen, many less heroic types of men have gone back to hand-coverings such as their grandmothers knitted for them when they were small boys. Much pleasure purring over the partial restoration to popularity of the most practical of all gloves seems to indicate that the masculine ambition to imitate and emulate the he-man type only stops at the fingertips.

With the main streets of the university towns populated by thoughtful young men wearing checks and plaids and animated sight also makes a strong bid for favor in less intellectual circles. The college boy gets the styles for all manner of men. Motorists have taken up fancy woolen gloves because they are warm and comparatively easy to haul on and off.

A nervous motorist and pair of snug gloves are soon parted, but the more practical woolen article will stand a great deal of brutal treatment. Gloves refer to the new entry as "lumber-jack gloves" because the patterns resemble the lively lumber-jack shirts so many of the younger men are wearing. Woolen gloves are especially adapted to the requirements of men who believe that brute force only will break the spirit of a pair of gloves.

court. The query of the United States will be answered immediately because the government has been requested officially by the United States to do so.

The Brazilian reply was "written and issued by a high official of the foreign office" with the understanding that his name is to be withheld. He said:

"Though Brazil has a federal constitution like that of the United States, she will not consider the decisions of her world court diminish her sovereignty. If such were the case, Brazil would not be there."

"The World Court was the result of the Treaty of Versailles and as such it is simply an arbitral tribunal. Therefore, the decisions of the World Court are not binding in the same manner as the laws of the country's Congress, but represent the some strength of compromise by the various nations adhering to the World Court as an arbitrator's decision of any kind."

"The United States has already submitted several questions for arbitration and up to the present time the question of reservations was never brought up."

"At the present time, the United States is arbitrator in the Tuna-Arica question. For comparison, the power which the United States represents in this question is the same as that which the World Court would represent in general, and yet neither Chile nor Peru consider the submission to the Coolidge decision a diminution of their sovereignty."

"Besides this, the nations form a part of the World Court only after authorization by their congresses, and in such cases it is judicially understood that said Congress must definitely agree to submit questions to the court."

"Even should a sentence of the World Court collide with the authority of Congress, there is still a recourse to ratification by Congress in the same manner that decisions of a foreign tribunal can only be obligatory after confirmation in Brazil and probably in every other country by the Supreme Court."

Angel Gallardo, Argentine Minister of Foreign Relations, made it plain that this country "will not intervene in any way in the matter of reservations by the Senate of the United States."

"The reason for this position is that we are not really members, as yet, of the League of Nations," said Senior Gallardo explained. "Our position is much the same as that of the United States."

"Former President Irigoyen joined the League of Nations for us, but as in the United States our Constitution requires that all such agreements be ratified by parliament, and that has not yet been done."

"Three years ago, President Alvar recommended that parliament ratify the agreement and enter the League, but favorable action has not yet been taken. Therefore, we are not yet members of the League and will have no official representatives there."

SECOND RUSSO-JAPANESE WAR IS SEEN BY BRIGADIER GENERAL HENRY J. REILLY OF THE UNITED STATES ARMY

By BRIGADIER GENERAL HENRY J. REILLY, O. R. G.
Far East Correspondent of Universal Service

(Copyright 1926, Universal Service)
TIENTSIN, China, March 13.—Events for some time have been leading to a second Russo-Japanese war. The recent dispute between the Manchurian war lord, Chang Tso Lin and the Russians, culminating in the arrest by Manchurian troops of Ivanoff, the Russian manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway, was only a surface indication of a serious situation. His subsequent release has relieved the strain for the time being. It has in no way removed the fundamental causes of a situation steadily becoming more and more serious and which must result in war.

Any American unacquainted with the situation may well ask, "What has all of this got to do with us? After all, would it not be a good thing to have Japan become involved on the continent of Asia that she would cease thinking about the hurt to her pride and her emigration problem occasioned by our exclusion laws? If it is a question of rivalry between Japan and Russia for the commercial exploitation of Manchuria, what do we care whether Manchuria has been taken through Russian Vladivostok or Japanese Dairen?"

In July, 1914, a misguided youth with an unpronounceable name shot an Austrian Archduke in a town with a more unpronounceable name. No one could justly say that this assassination caused the great war. It was, however, the spark in the gun barrel of causes that had been accumulating since the peace of Vienna in 1815. The assassination itself was a more or less interesting news item to the average American, but nothing more. Even the explosion of the powder barrel of European hatreds in the shape of universal European war only interested but did not deeply concern the average one of us.

Few, indeed, were those who in the summer of 1914 foresaw that shipping them across the Atlantic would pay the blood price of war upon European battlefields.

Briefly, the objectives of Japan in the Manchurian situation are:

1.—To secure upon the continent of Asia those natural resources Japan must have to build up her peace time industries. Above all, she must have them to be in an independent position as regards industrial mobilization for war when the time comes to demand the aid of our immigration laws.

2.—To break China up into different autonomous states, or spheres of influence, or both, thus preventing a strong, unified China, which would deny Japan control of Chinese resources and might in case of war with the United States attack Japan in the rear.

3.—Use America's enmity toward the Bolsheviks to gain sympathy to such an extent that we would lose sight of the Chinese side of the situation. This would convince the Chinese that American sympathy is a broken reed, thus breaking down the steadily growing

Chinese-American friendship. 4.—Restore the Manchurian war lord, Marshal Chang Tso Lin, to some measure of favor among the Chinese. Obviously, he will act to take control of the Chinese eastern railway away from Russia and restore it to China. In reality Japan will be using him as a catspaw to enable them to intervene. Since Marshal Chang accepted Japanese help to suppress General Kuo's recent rebellion he has been intensely unpopular with China.

5.—To cover up the assumption of the various rights in Manchuria by Marshal Chang in return for Japan's decisive help in defeating General Kuo. It must never be forgotten that while Japan has a constitution, a premier, a cabinet and a parliament, the real power under the constitution lies in the emperor. Also the army and navy are really, when it comes to decisive questions, under the emperor, who by using his constitutional powers can order and direct their movements regardless of civilian opinion.

Of probably even greater importance is the fact that, while there is considerable talk of socialism and kindred "isms" in Tokyo, Osaka, Kobe and smaller industrial centers, the mass of the Japanese people are not industrialized. They still believe in the emperor. In the army and navy, and fighting for the glory, the honor and the future of Japan.

The consequence is that in times of stress the wise leaders whose advice the throne asks and accept makes the decision which governs Japan's actions. These leaders, or better, advisers, are not politicians striving for temporary party or personal advantages. They are statesmen looking forward to Japan's future, fifty and a hundred years hence.

Any doubter of their ability has only to study Japan steady progress at home and as a power in international events during the past fifty years. Let them compare the Japan of 1895, almost afraid to go to war with China, with the Japan of 1914, the help of whose first class armies and navy was vigorously sought after by both sides of the Great War.

At the same time compare Japan's position today with that of 1914 prior to the outbreak of the war.

When Japanese statesmen look over the situation they see a military weak Russia with a population divided into at least two camps, Red and White; a China of immense potential resources and man-power torn by civil wars; an America primarily interested in home affairs and, as usual after war, making up for reckless war extravagance due to unpreparedness by reducing her army and navy to a point below safety. Germany has lost her navy base at Tientsin and is disarmed on land and sea France's sea power in the Orient is negligible. Great Britain is struggling with financial problems of first magnitude, her people are war weary and her naval base at Wei-Hai-Wei is not kept up. Her plans to build a naval base at Singapore show that she is more interested in blocking the door from the Pacific to the Indian ocean than she is to act in North Chinese and Japan waters. In other words, she is on the defensive.

Japan is relatively poor. She is over-populated. Even if a widespread industrial revolution such as that which changed England from an agricultural to an industrial country, takes place her population will not be provided for particularly if the present rate of increase continues. She needs raw materials for her industries today and will need the markets, but she must have more markets for the future.

The Japanese will not colonize tropical, or very cold climates. They cannot compete with the Korean or Chinese in agriculture or as small traders. Tropical islands such as the Philippines, their own Formosa, or Northern countries, such as Siberia and North Manchuria and Korea and China offer no outlets for their population. The Pacific Coast of America in every way fulfills their requirements and is desirable from their point of view. Its denial to them hurts them economically and, above all, offends their very strong pride.

This is one of the main springs of their constant attempt for many years to build up in the Orient the feeling that the yellow races must unite against the white, whatever Japan's leadership. Of course, whatever they may tell the European or American they are constantly preaching to the Asiatic the unity of the yellow to down the white.

America's attitude of mind and the material gains made by Japan as the result of the Washington arms conference insure Japan's being unafraid of attack from the Eastern Pacific. In the event that war should come before she is ready she is in a position to fight it upon our side of the ocean. Therefore, she can afford to turn her back on the Pacific for the time being. This white she again attempts to secure that position on the continent of Asia, which will insure her the plentiful supply of raw material she needs, and at the same time not only keep, but increase her Chinese markets.

A weak China unmodernized and broken up into spheres of influence or separate states means a change for Japanese exploitation in whole or in part of these resources. Such a China, Japan has the military power to handle. A United China with 400,000,000 people controlling their own industries and on a modern scale would not only be unmanageable from a military point of view but strong enough to cause Japan grave fears.

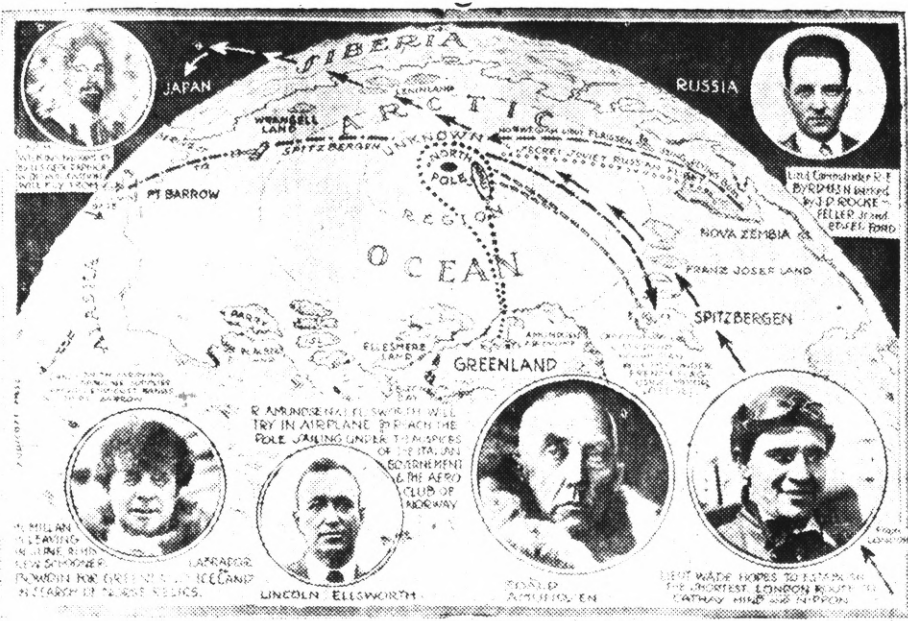

The Russo-Japanese war did not end Russian-Japanese rivalry in Eastern Asia. It merely transferred it from Korea and South Manchuria to North Manchuria and Inner Mongolia. The Russian revolution and the Kolchak advance through Siberia to Europe gave a chance for Japan to attempt to absorb eastern Siberia. However, the heavy expenses, the lack of desire of her people to settle in such a cold country and the opposition of the powers, caused her to withdraw.

Since the rivalry between the two countries has been confined to Northern Manchuria and Inner Mongolia, the Chinese Eastern Railway, under joint Chinese-Russian control, but Russian management, uses Vladivostok as its port of shipment. The Southern Manchurian Railway, under lease from the Chinese, but absolute Japanese control and management, uses Dairen, called Daini, by the Russians, who began it, as its port of shipment. Rate wars between the two railways are constant.

The Japanese policy has been to build branches of the South Manchurian railway in order to drain the territory now served by the Chinese eastern. Until recently, bull-dozing or buying a weak Peking government has been the favorite method.

The Christian Marshal Feng Yu Hsiang, by occupying Peking, put an end to that. The more recent method has been to take advantage of the Manchurian war lord, Marshal Chang's need for help against General Kuo to obtain concessions from him. The question of his owing allegiance to the central government of China has been gotten around by Manchuria proclaiming her independence. Thus the way is free for Marshal Chang and the Japanese to deal with each other regardless of Peking and the opinion of the rest of China.

Aside from the railways, Japan has engaged in banking and in the development of industry throughout Manchuria. This with benefit on the whole community.

However by various means other countries are kept from enjoying the same privileges. Also, by her usual methods of encroachment, Japan is engaged in creating interests to be guarded. First, as a rule, a Japanese drugstore will establish itself in a Chinese or Mongolian community. These drugstores are assessed of generally being the centers of trade in opium and cocaine. Next, a few small Japanese shops are opened. Then a few Japanese policemen arrive to preserve order among the Japanese. Later, as generally happens, when there is a row between Chinese and Japanese, a detachment of troops arrives to preserve order. If the community is of fair size, a Japanese branch consulate is then established.

Thus grow up the Japanese interests which have to be protected whenever any trouble occurs and which are always classed as Japanese rights. Such are the rights referred to by Baron Shidehara when, in answering a question in parliament, he said: "Japan intends to take steps to establish her commercial rights in Manchuria on a permanent basis if the Peking conference raises the extraterritoriality question."

Japan is afraid of the spread of Bolshevism, particularly in Korea, where the whole population is ready to grasp anything which might overthrow her rule. However, this is aside from the real facts, which are these: 1. That it makes no difference whether a Bolshevik, a Republican or a Royalist government rules Russia. The Russians as a whole are bitterly opposed to Japan's Manchurian and Mongolian policy.

2.—That the Chinese people are not deceived by the attempt to make the present situation in Manchuria appear to be a question between the Bolsheviks and China but know that it is really Russia versus Japan, each struggling once more to obtain something which is essentially Chinese.

There is this big difference between the situation prior to the Russo-Japanese war and that of today. Then Chinese public opinion and Chinese armed forces counted for nothing. Today they are both powerful forces to be reckoned with.

Whether the Chinese will forget their differences and unite to oppose Japan, or whether the bitterness and ambitions inherent in civil war will cause them to support both sides remains to be seen. That they will remain idle spectators as was the case in the Russo-Japanese war, is to be seriously doubted.
